State Historical Society Archaeology Camp being held in June

PIERRE, S.D. – The South Dakota State Historical Society’s Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) is sponsoring a three-day Archaeology Camp for students going into grades 4 & 5 for the 2013-2014 school year. The camp is an active, outdoor experience located on the old Fort Galpin archaeological site near the Oahe Downstream Recreation Area. Students should be prepared to hike and to work in the dirt alongside of professional archaeologists.

Students will learn an introduction to the field of archaeology, why archaeological excavations are held, what stories artifacts can tell about the past, the history of fur trading posts, how to map a site, and how to use team-building skills. In addition to excavations at the site, other fun activities will include making pottery, learning to recognize animal tracks and making track molds, learning about native plant species and how they were used, and learning flint knapping, the method used to make historic tools. A trip to the Turtle Effigy, a local historic landmark, is also included.

Camp dates are June 3-5, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. CDT. The program is structured for students to attend all three days. Registration is limited to the first 16 applicants. The $25 registration fee must accompany the registration and release forms found on the SHPO web site at <http://history.sd.gov/Preservation/>. Click on the link at the top of the page. Registration items must be received by May 22.
