Indexes to Letters Received, (1846, 1861-89) M725. 9 rolls. DP

The Continental Congress on June 17, 1775, appointed an Adjutant General of the Continental Army. After 1783 no further provision was made for such an officer until an act of March 5, 1792 provided for and adjutant who was also to do the work of inspector.

The Adjutant General is charged with matters relating to command, discipline, and administration of the Military Establishment, and has the duties of recording, authenticating, and communicating the Secretary's orders, instructions, and regulations to troops and individuals in the Army. He is also responsible for issuing commissions, compiling and issuing the Army Register and the Army List and Directory, consolidating the general returns of the Army and Militia, and recruiting.

The Adjutant General's Office chiefly handles Army orders, correspondence, and other records, and it receives final custody of virtually all records concerned with the Military Establishment, including personnel of the Army and discontinued commands, noncurrent holdings of bureaus of the War Department, and special collections.
